Would you like to learn how to get off that performance, approval addict treadmill? Many years ago I was straightening up the waiting room where I worked at the time and the book The Search For Significance practically dropped into my lap. Literally! The cover ~ a Telescope and Compass immediately caught my eye! What a beautiful visual I thought. So many of us are ~ searching ~ hoping that we are headed in the right direction. The direction God would have for us. I have always admired Billy Graham and when I read a quote by him within its pages ~ “Every Christian alive should read this book, I knew I had to open it’s pages. I am very happy that I did. I struggled with my self worth my entire childhood, teen years and adult life.

My appearance never really met with the approval my “friends.” I was never able to quite measure up to those in my life that were important to me, no matter how hard I tried. My belief system was based on lies that did not line up with what God had to say about me. Unfortunately, those lies caused me to make decisions that weren’t always the best for me.

Being able to apply God’s truth vs. Satan’s lies is critical in finding a healthy self worth.

This teaching is a Journey. We all know that in our life we will be faced with new challenges!

Believe me, I am always more than happy to admit that I am still under construction!

Would you like to take this journey with me! I would love to have you along!
